Area Council Meeting At Rockledge Decides Furt- wengler Needs Assistant

The Area Council members of the Abnaki District, Boy Scouts of America, met Tuesday night for a shore dinner and regular meeting at Rockledge Inn. Representatives from Waterville, Augusta, Camden and Rockland were present. Ruel Hess and Scout Executive Bill Furtwengler of Augusta spoke on the problems of the district.

The council decided to attempt to obtain a Scout field worker for this district to assist Bill Furtwengler in his work. The number of troops and resultant work for the executive is growing so rapidly that an assistant is needed badly.

The annual meeting of the Abnaki District will be held in October, probably in Waterville.

State Master Richardson Pleads For Increased Gas Tax

The Act of 90th Legislature, increasing gas tax per gallon for two-year period will relieve towns and cities to the extent of $900,000 annually, and will mean an average reduction of 3 to 5 mills on real property.

Drastic reduction in Highway, Education and Health and Welfare Departments cannot be made except by searching analysis to retain essential services. Federal law, plus increasing mileage of improved roads, makes it imperative to provide funds for both sound construction program and proper maintenance.

Present State Government represents the services built up over the years to meet the demands of Agriculture, Business and Labor. We can reduce these services any time we are willing to do for ourselves the things we can do, and assign to the State only those services we cannot do better ourselves.

Our great problem in Maine today is not so much the question of drastic reduction in spending as it is to work out practices which

[EDITORIAL]

THE NEW MASSACHUSETTS

New England pride will swing to the fore next Tuesday when the new battleship Massachusetts slides down the ways at the Fore River shipyard in Quincy. The name "Massachusetts" was assigned to another battleship whose keel was originally laid at the Fore River Yard in April of 1921, but work was stopped upon the signing of the Treaty for the Limitation of Naval Armament and eventually the unfinished hull was scrapped, along with seven other battleships then under construction. The present USS Massachusetts is similar though not identical to the battleships North Carolina and Washington already launched. Some idea of the magnitude of the job of launching a ship the size of the Massachusetts may be had from the fact that the launching cradle of steel and wood weighs 1450 tons and in the four launching ways (four instead of two ways have to be used in order to distribute the weight of the huge ship) there are about 300,000 board feet of lumber. To stop the ship in deep water provided for it by dredging, 860 tons of heavy anchor chain have been provided. Some 18 piles of the heavy chain weights, distributed on each side of the ship as it lies in the cradle, have been connected by means of drag lines and will help to retard the vessel as it slides into the water. The new Massachusetts will undoubtedly be assigned to the Atlantic fleet. What the future may have in store for this powerful new battle-wagon cannot even be guessed, but God's blessing will be bestowed upon it by every loyal American.

AS BRITAIN SEES US

Belief that America will enter fully into the war is not so strongly cherished in Great Britain as it was three months ago, if one is to judge by the latest poll conducted there by the American Institute of Public Opinion. Last June the percentage of Britons believing that our entry into the war was imminent was 72, while today it is only 57 percent. Twenty percent of those interviewed recently classified themselves as "undecided." Of the 57 percent still convinced that we mean business (active participation) 19 percent foresee our entry next year, 25 percent next Summer and 13 percent by the end of next year, from which figures it is apparent that Great Britain looks for a long war. Dr Gallup also sought opinions as to the help the United States is giving Britain. He found that 61 percent are satisfied, 25 percent dissatisfied and 14 percent undecided.

MORNING'S NEWS IN A NUTSHELL

The Reds claim 80,000 Nazi casualties in smashing counter attacks on the central front. The Germans claim gradual gains, at great cost, around Leningrad as the city is bombed. The nomination of Nathaniel Tompkins as justice of the Maine Superior Court was tabled by the Executive Council yesterday.

The record-breaking revenue bill—designated to raise $3,553,400,000 to help finance the huge defense program—received the final approval of Congress yesterday and was dispatched to President Roosevelt. The history-making measure is expected to lift federal revenues above the $13,000,000,000 mark next year but, because of mounting defense expenditures, it will not be enough to carry out Secretary Morgenthau's suggestion that two-thirds of governmental costs be paid from taxation and only one-third from borrowing.

Secretary Knox revealed yesterday that the American Navy was conveying British-bound cargoes on the North Atlantic and, in addition, had been searching for a German surface raider believed to be operating on the Pacific. But, he added, escorting groups of merchant ships was only one of many methods that were in use. Since the World War, he said, many ways of protecting shipping on the high seas had been perfected and the Navy was "employing them all."

The American Legion national convention, by voice vote, yesterday endorsed the foreign policy of the President and Congress and urged immediate repeal of the neutrality act and removal of all geographical limitations on movement of United States troops.

Federal Payments

Some of This Money Is Com- ing Into Knox and Lin- coln Counties

Payments of Federal old-age and survivors insurance in the area of the Augusta field office of the Social Security Board were at the rate of $10,317 monthly at the beginning of the present quarter, it was announced by Leroy F. Kittredge, manager.

The figures include monthly checks to the eligible widows and young children of insured wage earners who have died, as well as to qualified workers who have reached age 65 and are no longer at work.

Based on operations since the first of 1940, when the new Federal insurance payments went into effect, Mr. Kittredge said, the figures show about $3,372 monthly being paid to families of deceased or retired wage earners and about $6945 to retired workers.

The figures as of the first of July show that about 583 beneficiaries

Rev. Mr. Marsteller Tells Of the Greatest Need Of National Defense

The fall of democracy, as seen in Germany, can happen here, Rev. C. A. Marsteller told the Rockland Lions.

The greatest need in our national defense is the strengthening of the weak and vulnerable places in our national life, and the weakest and most vulnerable is the spiritual side.

This opinion was voiced yesterday by Rev. Charles A. Marsteller of the Littlefield Memorial Church, in a very earnest address delivered before the Rockland Lions Club.

"Character"—here he quoted an eminent professor — "is crumbling from top to bottom. A country is no better politically than it deserves ethically, and we will have and keep our form of government only so long as we have justice, righteousness, purity of life and holiness.

Today we are confronted by terrific forces. The overthrow of German democracy was not dreamed possible a few years ago, but what happened there can happen here, and will unless we awaken to the peril of the situation and see what we can do to rectify conditions.

The leaders of the government are beginning to realize that if we are to survive we have got to have God. There are forces at work which cannot be overthrown with tanks, battleships and munitions. Clergymen are looking out for the importance of character building.

Mr. Marsteller told of the decline in Protestant membership the past 25 years—a percentage drop of 24 in the past 16 years, but (and he thanked God) an increase during the past year. Stressing the need of ministering to the welfare of the children, the speaker said that more than one-half of the country's 30,000,000 children have no religious schooling.

"How many of you were at church last Sunday?" asked the speaker.

"Did you report to the Governor the conduct of your associates and the failure on their part to co-operate in the enforcement of the laws?" Cowan asked Thurston.

"I did not know what good that would do," said Thurston, "and I did not feel, under the conditions that the State was injured."

"Did you ever have any controversy with the others over these laws?" Cowan inquired.

"I presume we did," replied Thurston who testified that on many occasions "inspectors or others came in and asked that leniency be shown, for one reason or another," adding:

"One with enforcement experience realizes that often times licensees—particularly if they turn what is known as 'state's evidence' to assist in clearing up other matters—are given some consideration. It is not unusual."

"Let him (Thurston) go on," said Tirrell, "and say to him definitely that we want things done in a certain manner and want you to take the law from the attorney general. Don't send him out of his office to impress the State that he has been incompetent. Thurston gave to your State and to my State a good business administration."

Thurston Removed

Governor and Council Make Clean Sweep Of Liquor Commission

Maine's Executive Council last night voted 6 to 1 in joining Gov. Sewall for the removal of State Liquor Commissioner Raymond E. Thurston who defended himself against charges that he administered in disregard of law.

An order passed by the council after it had considered in executive session testimony taken at an all-day hearing said "it is not for the best interest of the State of Maine that a department shall be conducted in disregard of the laws of the State."

The other two commissioners, Harold S. Boardman (R) of Orono, former University of Maine president, and Thomas P. Locke (D), Biddeford lawyer, resigned two days ago in face of ouster proceedings.

In his closing argument at the hearing, Attorney General Frank I. Cowan accused Thurston and his two former colleagues of having set themselves up as a "super commission—a power in themselves—to disregard the word of the legislature which made the liquor laws."

Of all the charges instigated by the governor, the one stressed most by Cowan was that accusing Thurston and the others of suspending instead of revoking beer licenses, in some instances, allegedly contrary to law.

Testifying in his own behalf, Thurston, who declined to join his colleagues in resigning, intimated that not always could he agree with his associates in reaching decisions.

He said all three agreed, however, that the majority rule should govern all decisions. Thurston pointed out that he had only voted.

Thurston's counsel, Frank A. Tirrell, Jr. of Rockland, said in his argument that "the fact they (the commissioners) suspended instead of revoked licenses in some instances is only minor compared to their other important administrative duties."

"This was a three-man commission," Tirrell said, "and each one had his own conscientious and honest judgment. Honestly, they had differences of opinion. They couldn't always agree. I don't say that Thurston was always right or that Dr. Boardman was right all the time. But the minority had to give in to the majority." He said Thurston and the other two members had to use their discretion "and they did."

Tirrell asked what proof there was that any other commission "can do as much good or any better job than this one."

"Let him (Thurston) go on," said Tirrell, "and say to him definitely that we want things done in a certain manner and want you to take the law from the attorney general. Don't send him out of his office to impress the State that he has been incompetent. Thurston gave to your State and to my State a good business administration."

"Did you report to the Governor the conduct of your associates and the failure on their part to co-operate in the enforcement of the laws?" Cowan asked Thurston.

City Council Starts Move- ment For Removal From Main Street

The City Council last night, in a special session authorized Mayor Edward R. Veazie to start an immediate investigation into the possibilities of removal of the trolley tracks from Main street. A study of the costs and methods of removal will start today and a decision will be made in the very near future.

At this time, the rails are worth a sizeable amount of money for sale as scrap metal there being an estimated 150 tons of rail the length of the street.

A proposed ordinance governing the storage of gasoline and other inflammable liquids as well as the installations of storage tanks was referred to the fire committee for a later report.

The Black Cat

(By The Roving Reporter)

E. H. Philbrick says he did not see the Kickapoo vaudeville artist play a tune on drinking glasses, but does recall a Fourth of July celebration at Branch Mills, China, when a man dispensing lemonade used a corn broom for a banjo imitating the sound with his mouth. He had a washbub full of lemonade with strawberries in it, and was singing "High grade lemonade, made in the shade, stirred by an old maid, with a girl's leg." All drank out of a long-handled dipper, and the customer with the steadiest hand got the longest drink.

A post card comes from Cliff Lufkin, who wrote it in Flagstaff Arizona. "The Black Cat Cafe is right across the road from me," he says.

Persons who were out of doors Tuesday afternoon, complaining of the extreme heat, were treated to a surprising freak of nature, for the wind suddenly veered into the northeast with cyclonic force, and when the gust had passed there came in its trail a temperature a chilliness quite the reverse of the heat which had existed five seconds before.

The old feud between the North End and the South End, dormant for many years, flared forth anew yesterday afternoon when two schoolgirls came down across the Public Library lawn and began a punching and halpulling match that made the Park Street Arena bouts look like a peace conference. The arrival of the patrol wagon caused a cessation of hostilities, and the two girls, sobbing and bedraggled, went opposite ways.

Time In The Turning, by Elizabeth Stanton Hardy, published by Palmyra Publishing House, Portland.

This is a time of need for the outpourings of sensitive souls in poetry whose imagery expresses the pent feelings in words that overflow poignant longings of hearts. Reading Elizabeth Stanton Hardy's graceful lines with their spiritual quality, "their silver beat of miles and the throb of yesterday," we are taken out of the days sorrows into higher and more assuring view point of life. She has that quality of music in her expression and appreciation of thought that gives life to her verses and authority to her trend of visions. She is a dreamer of dreams which give radiance to her lines. She paints pictures that will live in memory; and example comes in the following:

WINDWARD WAYS
Wind plumes astern the purple moon
In undulating courses
Then plunges on the sea and rides
Along the blue uncharted sky
These great white galleons blow
Point single file the wild geese fly
Through trackless indigo.

SWORD OF EDEN
Since at the Gate an Angel stood
And barred us from beatitude,
It may well be—God's focused glance
Is bent on our significance.

Here we have in this vivid and thrilling tale with its pictures of the Land of the Mayas, told us by a modern thinker of great intellectual insight and perception, another modern survey of Lawrence Dame's travel stories. This author was born in Portland, thus again giving the native sons and daughters added pride in the prowess of her many writers. This World War veteran of distinction, and a journalist of renown has pedaled 25,000 miles in 21 countries, always seeking interesting data which the world needs. And welcomes from his artistic and affable pen.

We know all too little of this tropical peninsula of Yucatan, so full up with curious and exciting superstitions in this sun-worshipping and temple-studded land of the Maya. Mr. Dame finds many birds and flowers and curious animals, lost cities and historic rivers.

Cheerio, comrades and friends! Missed are the Summer visitors, many of whom read this column, as well as many former residents and other subscribers. Even though away from home, they yet rub elbows with us by reading the general city news. We look forward to seeing them again next Summer.

Winter schedule is: Post meetings are to be as usual—the first and third Friday of each month. Put the mark on your cuff, tie a string around your finger to remember that the next session is Sept. 19. Matters pertaining to the future welfare of the Post will be discussed and also the civic betterment of your city and its environs.

During the last meeting Comrade Oliver R. Hamlin gave a detailed description of his trip to the National Encampment. His account gave the actualities as though we were there in person.

Your Department Judge Advocate reports this encouraging news: During the current session of Congress, the report on H. P. 4845 by the House Committee on World War Veterans legislation was that this measure will add approximately $10 a month to the $30 a month pensions now allowed for disabled non-service connected World War veterans.

Those who are not members of the V.F.W. or the American Legion should take a trip to the Veterans Hospital in Togus and there the facts will make you realize that they owe it to themselves and family to join one or the other, or better yet, to join both.

Watch The Courier-Gazette for the day and date of the coming "Big Open Meeting." Eats, speeches and a grand get-together are yours for the coming.

This author maintains that Yucatan is not a distinct part of Mexico but belongs to Central America and he predicts great developments there under modern treatment. Those who read "New England Comes Back" will welcome more from this author's brilliant survey. The book is beautifully bound in best Library style, excellent stock in paper and workmanship; a worthy companion to any book lover's shelf of historical travel companion.

HOOT GIBSON, the famous Cowboy movie star who never permitted a "double" to do the dangerous picture stunts for him but who started his career in the pictures as a stunt man for less hardy actors, will be featured in the great indoor rodeo at the Eastern States Exposition at Springfield, Mass., Sept. 14-20, with his film horse, "Pal, Jr." The rodeo will be staged every night from Monday to Saturday in the brilliantly lighted Coliseum, with all seats reserved. It will bring into competition 75 of the nation's champion cowboys and cowgirls in thrilling exhibitions of trick riding, bronco busting, steer bulldozing, wild steer riding, calf roping, fancy roping, wild cow milking contest—and plenty of comedy. The program will include a variety of special novelty features, with music by the rodeo's American Indian Band led by Iroquois Princess White Fawn.

The fourth minesweeper built at Snow Shipyards underwent her preliminary acceptance trials yesterday with a Navy trial board in attendance. Everything went off as scheduled and another Snow ship is about to join the Atlantic Fleet. Nothing can be published of her performance, but, needless to say, the results were highly satisfactory.

The meeting of the Boy Scout leaders originally scheduled for tomorrow night is postponed until next Wednesday night at Scoutmaster Harold Whitehill's home. Scout Executive Bill Purtscheller will be present and have information important to everyone. All leaders are asked to attend.

Two Navy launches are scheduled in the County for Saturday, the AMC 106 at Snow's and the AMC 83 at the yards of the Camden shipbuilding and Marine Railways at Camden. The launches are set for just 45 minutes apart and there will probably be some scrambling of Navy officials to get from one to the other in time.

Yesterday's meeting of the Identification Officers was the concluding event of the season at Rockledge Inn, which has enjoyed a Summer of marked prosperity, greatly increasing the prestige of that justly popular shore resort. A Speed Experiment

Warren Man Strictly Observes 25-Mile Limit in Thomaston

Warren, Sept. 15
Editor of The Courier-Gazette:

For the past two years I have made an "experiment in automobile driving"—the results of which may be interesting to you.

Since the "Speed Limit 25 miles per hour" signs have appeared in Thomaston I have never been over 25 miles an hour through those limits. This is no easy task, for a car, particularly a modern one will slip up so easily. I go to Thomaston, from Warren on an average of twice a day from the middle of June to the middle of September.

The results of this are a bit interesting considering some of the comments regarding "out-of-State drivers." About 90% of cars pass me, which means 90% are going faster than the "enforced" 25 miles per hour. About 50% of the cars which pass me are "out of State." About 50% of all cars passing me pass at a speed which I should estimate at more than 30 miles an hour.

Also of interest (and this comes from younger drivers) are the comments—"Shake the lead out of your pants!"—angry horn toots, and dark looks. In spite of being called a "road mope" I shall continue this practice. I find it most interesting. I should add that these above comments have come from Maine licensed cars only.

I do not intend any of this as destructive criticism, but do offer it as "food for thought." A 30-mile an hour speed limit—strictly enforced would seem to me better, with perhaps 15 by the stores, and perhaps cut out entirely the gasoline waste by certain young automobile drivers and motorists who wander up and down, back and forth, with open couteaux particularly on Saturday nights.

I should add that the State Police are excellent. I have noticed many many times their alertness in directing traffic around a wayside tire repair job and the like. Their handling of these little extras makes them pleasant to know.

I hope these comments may be of interest.

Ellis Spear, 3d

PARK THEATRE
FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

George Cleveland, Robert Kent, Sarah Edwards, Maris Wixon, and Gene Autry in a scene from Republic's "Sunset in Wyoming"

Not since the hey-day of the late Tom Mix has a western hero been truly prominent in Hollywood firmament—until Republic's Gene Autry came along and very definitely established himself in the hearts of myriads of fans. His newest picture "Sunset in Wyoming" is the forty-eighth he has made since he cast his lot under the Republic banner six years ago, and with each successive picture he has added to his popularity until he stands today near the top of the list, boxoffice speaking, of not just the western stars alone, but all stars.

MAINE IN WASHINGTON

(From the Office of Senator Ralph O. Brewster)

All the Maine members of the Senate and House were back in Washington this week as a result of the shortening of the recess to take up various matters pressing now for action. First in order will be the tax bill which will probably be law sometime this week by the signature of the President and is designed to raise three billion five hundred million dollars to assist towards a balancing of the budget. The general idea of more taxes and less borrowing appeals to the Yankee instincts of New England. Nobody likes to be taxed but an honest effort has been made to spread the burden in proportion to the ability to pay.

The lowering of the exemptions to take in more people has been a point much discussed. It has not been generally realized, however, that this lowering of the exemption affects the old tax payers much more than it does the new taxpayers since they are immediately moved into higher brackets and will contribute two hundred fifty million dollars as a result of this cut to the fifty million dollars that is expected to come from the new taxpayers at an average of five to ten dollars apiece.

Sobering Off

Congress, like everyone else, is being sobered off by this emergency and a far more serious attitude is manifest toward all the problems and a more and more evident desire to do what is best for the people of the United States.

Senator White

Senator White has been occupied with the pollution problem along the Androscoggin and is now drafting legislation to be introduced.

Mrs. Enid Morse, Miss Mae Perrin and their mother went Wednesday to Brooklyn, N. Y. where they will spend the winter.

Mrs. Ethel Sherman is having repairs made on her building, Guy Hannan and Guy Leeman being the workmen.

Mrs. Elvin Turner, Harland Turner and Eugene Sexton of Augusta, Mrs. Ruth Boynton and family of Washington were visitors Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Forest Tibbets.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Banton were in Auburn Saturday.

Miss Golda Boynton of Belfast spent the week-end at her home here.

Without Painful Backache
Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and wastes out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, itching of the skin, frequent urination or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes during is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 million of kidney trouble sufferers to get rid of their blood. Get Doan's Pills.

jointly by Senator White and Senator Brewster and to be heard by the Commerce Committee of the Senate along with the Gillette Bill and one or two proposals working toward the solution of this problem. It seemed to Senators White and Brewster and to Congressmen Smith and Oliver whose Districts are equally affected that a bill designed to meet the Maine situation might be the best method of approach and might lead to some agreement with members from other sections as to how the entire problem could be handled.

Senator Brewster

Senator Brewster is planning two day flying trip to the Army maneuvers in Louisiana and particularly to observe the operations of the Maine troops at the maneuvers sometime the middle of this week as conditions in Washington may permit. All reports indicate that the Maine boys in Louisiana have been giving a good account of themselves and are now thoroughly seasoned troops.

Potato Experiments

The federal government has invested one million dollars in an agricultural research laboratory at Philadelphia where potato problems are one of the major matters to be considered and particularly the uses of potatoes that will make the crop more profitable.

The Bureau of Agricultural Chemistry and Engineering is conducting these experiments and W. W. Skinner, the Acting Chief of the Bureau, has furnished the report to Senator Brewster as to the work that is now being carried on at the Eastern Regional Research Laboratory.

Jack Frost Making His Fall Calls—Some Uses For the Telephone

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:

A lovely September day, with that delicious fragrance which always distinguishes this month. It is composed of ripened harvest and frost touched foliage and grass, distilled in the foam, drowsy rays of the sun. It is as though old mother earth is yawning, getting sleepy, almost ready to put on her nightcap to snooze under the white blanket of Winter.

Old Jack Frost has made us two visits, although Mr. and Mrs. Ansel Hilt, who reside in North Warren called on us yesterday, Sunday, and said they had had no frost on their farm, which is on a hill.

I wonder how many uses the telephone has been put to? Patrons of a line were much annoyed by sounds closely resembling the tick of a clock, which constantly sounded while they were exchanging the latest gossip over the phone, or talking over the war, prices, etc.

The telephone trouble hunter went on a still hunt and in one home found an elderly lady, with an earphone in her hand. Over it was stretched a stocking with a yawning hole, which she was darn- ing! Beside her on the table ticked an alarm clock.

Asked why she made such a use of the phone she answered, "Well, the stockings had to be darned and this was the slickest thing I could find to darn 'em on."

Another use of the phone was to amuse a bedridden invalid, listening to the neighborhood gossip. Still another was for baby to cut its teeth on.

Speaking again of old mother earth, I was much interested in an article about two bachelor brothers, who live the simple life on their ancestral farm in the shadow of Bald Mountain, Me. These brothers have literary and professional neighbors who esteem them. In their pictures they are shown shirtless, with trousers held up by suspenders and sneaker clad feet. They find health and happiness in this simple life, so near the bosom of the earth, and they have common sense not to envy their white shirt and white collar fellowmen. Which is the freer, happier man, one of these brothers, who patched his brown trousers with blue patches, and got a good laugh out of a moving picture fan, who focused his camera especially on those patches, or the man who must enslave his Adam's apple in a stiff, white collar, and his limbs in knife creased pants, lest he offend social custom?

Men and women have to dress for their profession, and not many can enjoy the free life of the two brothers. But though men or women wear patches or the finest of linen, silk and wool in their hearts—and behavior they can be free from snobbishness. They can meet together with all classes on a common level. But with a dear old gentlemen I once knew I'll say, "God have pity on the man or woman who prides him or herself on being a leannin' over backward snob! I'd much rather be a friend of a cannibal."

HAZEL M. YOUNG

Friends and relatives of Miss Hazel M. Young of Matineus were shocked to learn of her sudden death Aug. 31 in Rockland.

Miss Young was a lineal descendant of Rowland Young, one of the first settlers in Agamenticus (Old York), Me., in 1630, and in several other lines, her lineage has been traced authentically to numerous Puritan and "Mayflower" ancestors.

She was born at Rockland Aug. 21, 1896, the third child of nine, born to Ernest A. and Grace C. Young. With the exception of a few years while attending Northfield Seminary in Massachusetts, she lived her days in the house in which she was born. In her own words, "She did the best she could," which proved indeed exceptional.

During her mother's declining years—and after her death—for the remainder of her father's days, she administered to the needs of her parents with unflinching devotion. Since her father's death she had maintained a home for her several brothers and a haven for the rest of the family. Not only as a housekeeper, but as a home maker, and as a master of the culinary art, she had few equals.

The measure of her hospitality was unbounded. With Hazel, "The latchstring was always out," and the members of her family, and her numerous friends were invariably the recipients of a hearty welcome. In her quiet, unobtrusive way she was the friend of the needy, the ill, and the unfortunate, and gave freely of her substance and her services to any worthy cause. In addition to her other activities, for the past few years she had served the community as tax collector in an exceptionally able manner. For the year 1940 she collected every dollar of the tax commitment without recourse to tax liens or other legal proceedings.

Escorted by a long cortege of friends, she was laid to rest in the family lot, in the cemetery on the hill. The beauty and extent of the floral tributes were beyond description and marked the esteem in which she was held by her innumerable friends. Rev. Neal Bousfield of the Seacoast Mission officiated at the services at the house and at the grave.

The bearers were Milton Philbrook, Harold Ames, Norris Young, Brad Young.

Surviving her are: five brothers, Horace R., Clifford B., Carl H. of Matineus, W. Hanscom of Melrose, Mass., Harland A. of Quincy, Mass.; two sisters, Mrs. Jennie Y. Philbrook and Mrs. Linola Y. Hill, both of Matineus; two uncles, Leon L. Young of Matineus and Harry W. Young of Southboro, Mass.; three aunts, Misses Ada B. and Alena L. Young of Rockland and Marian A. Young of Matineus; also numerous cousins, one nephew who is in the Army; two nieces, Roberta T. Young, attending Hyde Park, Mass. High School and Gracie Clifford Philbrook.

Out of town persons attending the services were: Mr. and Mrs. Beston of Nobleboro; Mrs. William Hogarth, Mrs. Fred Byers, Miss

Fold thy hands, thy work is over. Cool thy watching eyes with tears. Let thy poor heart, over wearied. Rest alike from hopes and fears. All thy cares and sorrows over. Yet 'tis hard for us to part. But of you our fondest memories Ever linger in our heart. Dearest sister, our farewells spoken. As the tears bedim our eyes. But some day we hope to meet thee. When there'll be no more good-byes. A Much Photographed Vinalhaven Scene

Scenes such as this we see every day and accept them as being commonplace, while the Summer visitor may travel a thousand miles or more in search of such a spot. The lobster catcher's home, freshly painted, on the banks of the Reach going into Vinalhaven, setting in a clearing midway between the shore and the woods with the weatherbeaten fish houses covered with pet buoys, and the traps piled high behind the old wharf, make a scene that is photographed by hundreds every year. On the trip aboard the W. S. White, on which this picture was taken, no less than ten persons were taking snapshots of the fishermen's homes along the shore.

OVER THE WHOLE HOUSE

• This is the first really comfortable winter we have spent in this house. Last year the front rooms upstairs were always uncomfortable on cold days. This year John said he was sick and tired of heating the whole outdoors—so he had the house insulated, and you should hear the whole family now. Comfortable—I'll say we are! Just like a warm blanket over the whole house. It wasn't a bit of trouble putting it in—we expect to save up to 40% on our fuel bills—and get through the year without a cold. You had better look into it.

This new thick-insulation method is not like old methods. It consists of a marvelous loose material, which is blown into the air spaces of your walls and roof, whether your house is new or old. Quickly done, without mess—fireproof, virtually indestructible. Saves as much as 40% on fuel bills—saves labor. Keeps rooms cool in summer, warm in winter. Prevents lath-marks.

• Sold on easy deferred payment plan. Let us furnish you an estimate—without obligation.

This revealing book, by a man who has been commercial attaché at the U. S. Embassy in Berlin for 15 years, tells American business men some of the lessons they will have to learn if or when they try to do business with a victorious Germany.

I have loved England by Alice Duer Miller.

This book is very different, yet it stems from the same deep sympathy and understanding for England which touched a responsive chord in every reader of "The White Cliffs." Primarily a book of photographs, it is illumined on every page by the comments of Mrs. Miller, sometimes by a personal episode; an appropriate poem, or perhaps a quotation from Evelyn's Diary or Pepys's. Occasionally Mrs. Miller draws from her store of English memories a richly humorous reference or a curious item of old history. A delightful book that you will not want to miss.

A few of the newer books that have been added this month:

The story of a girl in a midwestern town during the Civil War. "Faye's Folly" was the name given to the great house which Sheba's father had built. Sheba is 18 when the story opens—it is 1864—and the thunder of Sherman's march rolled even across Illinois, for to Sheba, concern for an officer with Sherman was the central fact of her life. Sheba's romance verged more than once upon tragedy, and the way in which the strange treachery of a soldier's wife resolved her future and led to her happiness rounds out a real and absorbing novel. Marriage is a Private Affair, by Judith Kelly.

Theo Schofield and Tom West were married under the happiest possible circumstances. They had money enough to live comfortably and graciously. They had a plan. And this is the story of the four years following that marriage—four years during which the frailties and strength of modern marriage are portrayed with candor and perception. The novel's theme is so representative of common experience that it is sure to strike home to a large audience. Entertaining and well written.

Summer holiday by Alice Duer Miller.

An omnibus volume containing two novels: "The Reluctant Duchess" and "Manslaughter," one novelette: "Gowns by Roberta"; and three long short stories: "Mother Announcing"; "They shall not pass"; and "Instruments of Darkness"; all of which have recently been out of print. You Can't Do Business With Hitler by Douglass Miller.

This revealing book, by a man who has been commercial attaché at the U. S. Embassy in Berlin for 15 years, tells American business men some of the lessons they will have to learn if or when they try to do business with a victorious Germany.

I have loved England by Alice Duer Miller.

This book is very different, yet it stems from the same deep sympathy and understanding for England which touched a responsive chord in every reader of "The White Cliffs." Primarily a book of photographs, it is illumined on every page by the comments of Mrs. Miller, sometimes by a personal episode; an appropriate poem, or perhaps a quotation from Evelyn's Diary or Pepys's. Occasionally Mrs. Miller draws from her store of English memories a richly humorous reference or a curious item of old history. A delightful book that you will not want to miss.

This And That

By K. S. F.

This is the 20th anniversary year of the Readers Digest, and what a fine record they have made in these score of years.

For one to be pro-American it is not necessary to be anti-anything, and yet it's quite impossible not to be fiercely belligerent against the hate and vicious spirit of Nazi killers.

The sources of many modern drugs such as chenopodium, cocaine and quinine come through the Aztecs and Incas of the Central and South American countries.

Safety measures taken by America's big defense industries have greatly improved, yet there is much more to be wished for.

One of the U. S. Army's most important and least publicized branches is the Subsistence Research Laboratory at Chicago. This unit has a staff of eight Army officers and 10 civilians, all specialists in food, meat and allied lines. They have full day's nourishment done up in a four-ounce chocolate-like bar, and two of the six squares provide a full vitaminized meal that satisfies and nourishes.

In some countries today all the toiletries must be registered with the government, so look out for your home made creams and powders if this comes to be a ruling here.

Mrs. Roosevelt's pet economy is saving strain. I knew a very fine lady who made all her dish cloths from strings that came to her hand, and that most persons throw away. To tell the truth, it is also one of my pet ways to save for need.

It was too bad that Wizard Edison was not a financial wizard. He thought of his motion picture invention as a toy and failed to patent it in other countries, so it was stolen. The smart business men abroad are often astounded at the Yankee's lack of foresight. They soon copied the Edison machine and made fortunes.

It was Thomas a Kempis who told this truth: "Love feels no burden regards not labors, would willingly do more than it is able, makes good many difficulties."

Between 1860 and 1882 more than 15,000,000 buffalo were slain on the great plains of this country and now there are only a few in far removed sections.

Do you who are thinkers believe that there are more than a few Germans who actually think or believe in the myth of a German super race? This temporary capacity for destroying world powers and human beings will be crushed by the right and power of higher thinking and effort.

It is time to curb eating and drinking habits for improvement in health as a nation. Once in ancient Gaul there was a "maximum girth" law for both men and women and one was fined if he went over the mark.

Some English soldiers sleeping in a tent in a camp were awakened by a terrific crash not far away it seemed.

"What was that—thunder or bombs?" asked one sleepy fellow. "Bombs, I guess."

"Thank heavens for that. I feared we were going to have more rain."

Some parts of the State are thinking wisely on an act to prohibit wild noises on cities' main streets. Some traffic regulations to keep this danger out would be excellent for protection of life on the narrow main thoroughfare of Rockland. A wedding party of a dozen cars rushing madly through the busy thoroughfare is a menace to life. "A little thought, a little care, may save some life, we know not where."

WORDS OF A PHILOSOPHER

Progress Is Slow; Patience Priceless, Declares a Brookline Woman

Brookline, Mass., Sept. 13

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—We are bewildered by the increased problems confusing the world. Instead of getting in a panic over the seeming hopelessness of the present conditions, we must wake up and begin to understand what is the cause of the unrest in the world we live in.

Now is the time we must begin to realize that all civilization is Every movement in the world built upon thought forces. Affairs is built by thoughts. We have led thought seeds to wrong action, causing a harvest of chaotic result. Thought seeds, barren or productive, invite destruction or a source of power.

Civilization has been stunted and enmeshed in the demands of the dominated material world. Materialism is man's supreme master, and is hostile to order and law. Life is constantly getting out of adjustment. Material states are always changing.

This is an age that challenges us with crushing force, that our blindness and impatience will have to give way to a broader, kinder scheme of action. What is our greatest need? Our need is to revive faith in the hearts of our fellowmen. We are on the threshold of discovering that there are new powers, new sources and energy that will help to change our way of living.

There are no short cuts. All progress is slow. We cannot hurry the growth of civilization. We must learn that patience is a priceless gift. Each generation must rebuild, demanding higher ideas, more powerful thoughts of warmth and understanding for humanity, so that human welfare may be fused and amalgamated for the benefit of all.

CAMDEN BOOK MART

Lovers of good reading will find their tastes amply supplied Friday and Saturday at the former Ralph Buckin store in Camden where the High School alumni will have quantities of volumes to offer at a mere fraction of their worth.

The range of subjects covers travel, fiction, poetry, text books, old works, best sellers of the current season and all by reputable authors. Most of them are in excellent condition, having been contributed by graduates of the school who are interested in the project of financing scholastic enterprises in this manner. Other non-members of the school have also generously given of their library stocks. One person supplied over 200 volumes.

Shelves will be open to the public Friday at 2 o'clock and book lovers are welcome to browse to their heart's content with no obligation. If anyone appreciative of good literature however can go out without a prime copy of Lincoln, Shakespeare, Roberts or other favorite writer tucked under his arm, it will be a door slam on opportunity; but even locking at books is a pleasure to anyone who genuinely likes them, and the Camden High School Alumni Association issues a general invitation for inspection of its stock.

CANDLES BURNING

There is the story of a country home not too far from the road, but when the lights of streets have not penetrated and where nights are dark and the way lonely. Some score of years back it was noticed that at this particular home there was always a lighted candle near the window, no matter how late the passing this spark would throw its gleam of heartening light and comfort to the traveler. Once a man went to the door late at night to inquire if all was well in the home. He found that the family were in bed, but some member hearing his knock responded from a chamber window. "I saw your light friend," said he, and so late, I feared there might be need of help? "No thank you," said the man at the window. "We just keep a candle in that window each night to say 'God bless you on your way.' 'Well, I vow,' said the traveler. He has the knowledge that kind hearts still live and are willing to take the trouble to smile out at the passer by when the night and darkness comes.

EASY WAY TO GET A TELEPHONE NUMBER

Of course you know the easiest way to get a telephone number—to look in your telephone directory. There it is, neat as a pin, right where it belongs... in alphabetical order. That is the way most people find telephone numbers.

Once in a while, when the party you want to reach is not listed in the latest directory and you are sure that they have a telephone, you call "Information" for the number. That isn't necessary very often because your Telephone Company does a pretty good job of putting in listings of every last new telephone installed right up to the last possible minute before printing the directories.

Now, if there were no telephone directories printed and people had to call "Information" for every number they wanted to reach, there'd be a tremendous demand for telephone directories. Yet the strange fact is that about forty-five million times a year people call up "Information" for numbers that are right where they should be in the telephone directories. This, despite the fact that most of the time it's easier and quicker just to look in the directory. And it speeds up "Information" service for everybody.

WITH THE EXTENSION AGENTS AND THE KNOX-LINCOLN FARM BUREAU

Agriculture

For the control of mice in orchards, a demonstration has been arranged by the Extension Service, in co-operation with the Farm Bureau Tuesday forenoon Sept. 23, at the Ralph Brown and Howard Coose orchards in Hope. Max Turner, of the USDA, will give the demonstration. He also will have a supply of the poison with him so that orchardists can obtain what they need at that time. In the afternoon he will be at the orchards of A. J. Marston and Bryant Hodgkins, Jefferson.

The annual membership drive of the Knox-Lincoln County Farm Bureau is now being conducted in the county. Meeting this next week will be held in Edgcomb this afternoon, North Edgcomb in the evening, Friendship, Friday afternoon and Jefferson in the evening.

The pasture committee of Knox and Lincoln counties, Wallace Spear, North Nobleboro; Herbert Hawes, Union; and Joe Chapman, Damariscotta; will attend a statewide meeting at Highmoor Farm, Sept. 20. There will be an inspection of the plots which are being carried on by Dr. Del Fink of the Experiment Station, and a meeting to discuss progress in the counties.

Frank Flagg, supervisor of the county dairy herd improvement Association, is spending the week at the Eastern States Exposition, Springfield as one of the four outstanding boys in 4-H club work.

With the Homes

"Aids in Clothes Buying" is the subject which the home demonstration agent Lucinda Rich, is presenting this Fall to many farm bureau groups. It concerns foundation garments, types of garments, types of figures, kinds of materials, and how to be well fitted. Posture is important, too, because without good posture the foundation garment can do very little to make a good figure. In Union, Sept. 9, the group met with Mrs. John Howard for this meeting. Mrs. Gertrude Hupper entertained the Tenants Harbor Farm Bureau group in her home Sept. 12 for this same subject.

Other groups scheduled for the coming week to have this subject of foundation garments are Simonton, Sept. 18; Vinalhaven, Sept. 22; Montsweag, Sept. 23; and Edgcomb, Sept. 25.

Mrs. Theresa Anderson, of the Bureau of Public Health in Augusta, is finishing her second week of meetings in Knox and Lincoln counties on "Mental Health and Hygiene." She has spoken in eight communities. She has come at the invitation of the extension and Farm Bureau groups, but many visitors have been invited to attend.

The Whitefield Farm Bureau met at the hall Sept. 11. The subject for the day was "Rug Making" which was conducted by the home demonstration agent. Five started to hook for foot stools or for chair seats. Dinner was served by Mrs. Minnie Fowles with Mrs. Hattie Hansen and others assisting her. The next meeting will be Oct. 9, on "Food for Defense" which Mrs. George Hansen, foods leader, will conduct.

Miss Kathryn Briwa State extension foods specialist, who replaced Leone Dakin Nutting, will be in the county Friday to make calls on school teachers and superintendents about serving school lunches this year.

Mrs. Martha Krahn, foods leader in Sheepscot, presented the "Foods for Defense" material to her group at their Sept. 10 meeting. She explained what a good low cost diet should include and assisted each woman in figuring out from the chart what their families needed. She explained the importance of good planning every day in order that everyone in the family gets what he needs. Twenty-three were present.

4-H Club Notes

Local contests to be held during the coming two weeks are: Damariscotta Mills and Nobleboro; Sheepscot 4-H, Best Maids, Whitefield, Happy Homemakers, Alna, at Sheepscot Grange Hall, Sept. 19; George's Valley and Happy-go-Luckies, Warren, Sept. 23; Abnakis and Pioneers, Tenants Harbor, Sept. 25, Community Room; New Harbor, Pemaquid, South Bristol, Sept. 26; Alford Lake 4-H, Hope, Singing Sewing, Happy Juniors, West Rockport, Junior Sunshine Simonton at Simonton, Sept. 26; Jolly Hustlers, Burkettsville, Razorville Mt. Top Maids, Medomak Merry-makers and Hill and Valley Boys, Washington at Washington, Sept. 27. These are the "finishing up" meetings of the year. Members will have exhibits of their year's work on display and give a short program for parents and friends. All meetings begin at 7:30.

Richard Gerry, agricultural instructor, Waldoboro, will hold a meeting at the agricultural room at the High School tonight. The purpose of the meeting is to give briefly a few pointers on judging breeds of poultry, selection of breeding chickens, judging live market chickens and eggs on exterior quality to the five boys from Knox-Lincoln county chosen to attend the State judging contest at Orono, Sept. 27, in competition for a free trip to the Poultry Exposition at Harrisburg, Penn., Oct. 8-12.

Walter Henry, Eugene Pales, Thomaston; Daniel Andrews, West Rockport and David Achorn and Arthur Burgess, Waldoboro will attend the meeting.

Charles Coolbroth and George Mills were winners of the judging contest on room improvement record sheets conducted by the club agent at a meeting of the Pioneers of Tenants Harbor, Sept. 11. For a community service the boys met Saturday at the manual training room to make markers for the streets in Tenants Harbor under the direction of their leader, Forrest Wall.

Bernal Jewett, leader of Happy Homemakers, Alna, Mrs. George Hansen, leader of the Best Maids, Whitefield, Mrs. Ruth Leighton, leader of the Sheepscot 4-H and the county club agent, Anna Simpson, met at Mrs. Leighton's home in Sheepscot Sept. 10, to plan the local contest program to be given at the Sheepscot Grange Hall, Friday night, Sept. 19. The program will include a style dress revue, demonstrations, musical numbers, group singing, readings and accounts of 4-H experiences. All parents and friends are cordially invited.

Harold and Willard Brown were chosen to give a public demonstration on "Lice and Mites" at a Farm Bureau meeting early in October, at a meeting of the Hope's Happy 4-H, after school, Sept. 12. Mrs. Bessie Hardy, leader, discussed record sheets and stories with the boys.

Agnes Troop was announced the winner of a judging contest on muffins held earlier in the year at a meeting of the Abnakis of Tenants Harbor, Sept. 11, in the new community room. Plans were made at this time for local contest which is to be Sept. 25. Mrs. Pearl Wall, went over record sheets and discussed stories with the girls.

The club agent conducted the last of a series of canning bees held with girls' 4-H clubs during the Summer, Sept. 13, with the New Harbor Thimble and Needle Club at the home of their leader, Mrs. Wintie Russell. The girls learned how to can string beans in the pressure cooker.

The Memory Man

Has His Say About Medicine Shows, and It's a Good Yarn

(by Iree Member)

Reference by the Roving Reporter in the Black Cat column to the Sagwa Indians on Broad street started the memory wheels turning in the mental cavity of Iree.

The first out of doors "Medicine show" I remember was about 60 years ago. I was attracted to the performance by certain strange sounds which more or less remotely resembled music. I followed up the noises and was led to a spot just back of the Maine Music store—between that building and Nelse Ulmer's stable. I found there a platform and on it two men and an old fashioned organ. One of the men, smallish and wearing a dark mustache almost as large as he was, sat at the organ and played and sang a song about "Poor little Mary, lost in th' flood-ud-ud!" while the larger man arranged papers and quite a stack of money on a small table.

When the song was finished the big man jumped up and began the most lurid description of the ills which afflict humanity which I had ever heard. According to him, there was not a well person in Rockland and the only cure for these legions of sick people was the liquid he had bottled and was offering for sale—only $1.00 per bottle. He waved those bottles in front of our several faces; he patted each bottle and promised good health and long life to all and sundry if they would take this remarkable and newly discovered remedy.

He repeated gruesome tales of persons who had died a horrible death from maladies too numerous to mention before this great remedy had been discovered and soon I heard one man say to another, "By thunder, Jim, he hits my case exactly. My back has been so lame for nigh on a year that I haven't been able to work half the time!" "It's my liver!" cried another, "that man sure knows his business ain't I'm goin' to have me a bottle of that Sagwa stuff!" Still another, and then another man mumbled that he "had been ailing for a long time" and that the man had described his case to a T. Pretty soon the air was full of hands, waving dollar bills and fighting for a chance to get a bottle of Sagwa. That feller could sure pass bottles and snatch dollar bills!

After the rush was over the little man seated himself at the organ and sang "Poor little Mary, lost in th' flood-ud-ud!" again. By that time a new crowd had gathered and after another word for word spiel, bottles and dollar bills changed places and "Poor little Mary" once more came forth from the lungs of the little man with the big mustache. I don't know how long they kept the show running—I left after the third spud about Mary and the flood-ud-ud.

I wonder if others besides Iree remembers the big man with a red face who put on a "one man" show on Limerock street. (About 50 years ago) This man had no platform. He hired a wagon and placed it close to the curb—almost exactly opposite the place where Poor little Mary was lost in the fl—well, you know the rest.

This red faced giant stood in the wagon and belted out a small crowd stood about the wagon. He then invited some young man to come up and be hypnotized. When a young chap (name purposely withheld) got up in the wagon he was told to "lock me in the eye and clap your hands" and after a minute or two was told that he could not stop. He couldn't and the big man shouted, "he is under my control, body and soul" and turned his back on the hand clapping young man and started a spiel along the same lines as, well the same old line such showmen use and described above.

He sold a dozen or more bottles of "Katonka" before he brought the young man out of his trance and stopped the hand clapping. When he was packing up the unsold goods—and the dollars—someone questioned his right to pose as an "M. D." and asked him for credentials. He struck a pose and belted out "I am the only son of an illustrious male parent and my father's name is Nicholas Murray Depew of N. Y.!" Someone in the crowd shouted "you're a liar" and the crowd scattered. Boy! What a roll that red faced giant garnered that night!

Another medicine show I remember was staged in a tent. Location? About where the Littlehale Grain mill used to be. They had several entertainers and put on a neat little show. Staid a week and had good attendance. I was there two nights and I think they sold enough Katonka that week to float a U. S. destroyer—well, partly enough, anyway. Funny how many people felt real ill after listening to those Katonka spiels. That was 50 years ago but I remember the words and music of a song sung by a member of the cast. I never heard it before nor since but will play it for you any time you care to visit our Igloo and request it. Here are the words.

"Some people you know, they have funny ways. Did you ever notice on the street how they wink and they blink as they pass you by, from your head to the sole of your feet. If you're out after dark you will hear them remark "did you catch onto Jimmie, or Ted? Oh, what a hummer, ain't she a stunner? Those are the remarks I've heard said. Cho. (Change rhythm).

By jove, Jack, did you catch on to that? Isn't she a darling? She's a Daisy! See her looking back! By jove, Jack, she would set any man crazy! I bet you ten to one it's easy catching on. I know it for she has a roguish eye. See her looking back! By jove, Jack! She will be mine by and bye! Call at Iree's Igloo and hear the music any time.

The most interesting experience I ever encountered in connection with a Medicine show was one night about 40 miles from Buffalo. Tell you about it sometime. It will be easy to remember as it was only a few years back—about 1905 or so. Almost too recent to be worth remembering.

Five fighting ships were delivered to the Navy in May and 13 in June of this year; 407 minor naval craft were under construction in May 1941 as compared with 54 in July of last year.

WASHINGTON—AND YOU

By Margaret Chase Smith

Washington, Sept. 17.—The "vacation" of the House of Representatives is over and, like most Members, I found the time all too short to take care of the business of the District which piled up during the year-long session of Congress. I especially regret that most of the time had to be devoted to business, leaving so little for "visiting."

The big issue that met us on our return, in the House, was the conference on the three and a half billion dollar tax bill Conference report which was a compromise between the tax bill as the House passed it and as the Senate passed it. I favored the bill, but there were items I did not like and omissions of items I thought should be in. I was also disturbed by criticisms that the bill is inequitable. My principle has been that we must tax heavily and at once to pay as much of the defense costs as possible. I am doubtful about cutting down the incomes will be taxed, while at the same time being easy on large profits. Tax bills are complicated, integrated measures and it is difficult to tinker with them on the floor. Another tax bill is soon to be framed and I hope that inequities in this bill will be remedied. I agree with those favoring a revision of our whole tax structure. Even in my short time in Congress I have seen how haphazard our tax structure is, with new taxes tacked on here and there like patchwork.

A New Yorker, who is a Summer constituent of mine, writes on the subject of curtailing non-defense expenditures as defense increases and I have replied that I favor this general policy. Discrimination must be used in curtailment and that means that each individual proposal must be studied on its own. He criticizes the Administration spending of defense funds and I feel that one of the most valuable services the Republican Party can render to this country now is to be the watchdog of Administration expenditure of the money that is being pulled out of our pockets by tax measures.

A Rockland steamboat company official wrote asking for figures on the increased cost of living, saying he wanted to compare national and community increases with increases on their boats. A complete tabulation of costs of living is kept by the Labor Department both by the year and by the month by regions and by cities. The rise in Portland, the "big city" of Maine, was 7.6 percent between July 1940 and July 1941.

The interest in the fuel and gasoline situation is shown in many letters from constituents. Two suggest different methods of conservation of gasoline by pleasure cars and motor trucks and I have forwarded these to the Deputy Petroleum Co-ordinator, Ralph K. Davies at the Department of the Interior. One proposes suspending bus services which parallel railroads; the other has an ingenious system of tags which would restrict the use of pleasure cars on the roads. The tags could be made of plywood to save metal. Especially interesting in this correspondence is the recognition that we must be careful of our petroleum use to be sure that we have enough for defense here and with the fighting democracies abroad who may need our supplies.

Spoke at Rockland Lions Club, Pittsfield Kiwanis, Skowhegan B.P.W., Rotary, Methodist Social Circle and Daughters of Isabella, Waldo Pomona Grange, Townsend Clubs and others. This was helpful to me as such meetings are an education to a Congressman. Although the Congressman is supposed, as speaker, to give the information, the questions and the discussions that go on give the Member a foundation of knowledge of what the District is thinking that is very valuable in carrying on your business in Washington. During the busy session we have to depend on letters and those of you who come to Washington.

Another valuable occasion was the Pittsfield meeting of the Auxiliary of the American Legion for its newly elected president, Mrs. Hilda Hatch, attended by men and women from all over the State. Another opportunity which gave me a bird's eye view of the State airport situation was the plane flight with Jos. R. Cianchette, Pittsfield contractor. The commercial and defense airport network of the State is an integrated thing and local ports cannot be isolated from the whole picture. I was glad to see the ports at Greenville, Millinocket, Presque Isle, Princeton, Eastport, Bar Harbor and Bangor, to fit them to the picture of ports in my own District which I visited by automobile. The stop in Aroostock County gave me an opportunity to hear discussion of unemployment and customs problems which will be of value to me in meetings of the unofficial unemployment committee of a group of House Members, and in meetings of the Maine Congressional delegation on border problems.

Helen Twombly, director of women's projects for the Maine W.P.A. took me on a survey of women's projects in Lewiston, Waterville, Auburn, and gave me information on others. The defense activity has stimulated feeling that W.P.A. and other relief expenditures can be cut down. I regretfully find that the defense contracts going to large firms and to those making strictly defense products is causing serious difficulty in smaller industries and those making things not essential to defense. I am a Member of the Committee of House Republicans studying the small-business problems due to defense, and feel that the relationship of these to W.P.A. and other relief agencies must be carefully considered.

I was sorry that my return to Washington made it impossible for me to attend so many meetings, especially the Republican State Committee meeting at the home of United States Senator and Mrs. Ralph O. Brewster, at Dexter, and others. My first job here was house-hunting—or, more exactly, apartment hunting. The jam caused by defense activities here has taken from me the house which I have rented during most of my time in Washington, and since suitable houses are almost impossible to find, I have taken an apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel temporarily.

I was also sorry to have to decline an invitation to speak at the annual convention of the Regular Veterans Association, Kansas City, Sept. 10-13 to which I was invited because of my position on the Invalide Pensions Committee of the House. My policy has been to decline invitations outside of Washington while Congress is in session, except on such week-ends as no business is expected on the floor.

Typical of the baseless rumors which get around in time of emergency is the one which a Thomaston constituent wrote she had heard, about a large concentration camp to be built in West Virginia. I am always glad to have these brought to my attention so that they may be exploded if found to be false. The Information Section of the War Department and the Military Affairs Committees of House and Senate officials assure me that they know of no concentration camp proposed or under construction in West Virginia or elsewhere.

The term "concentration camp" is usually applied to a place where prisoners of war are confined. We have none, and since we do not have any prisoners of war there would seem to be no need for such construction. A new War Department office building is to be constructed in Arlington, Va., just over the line from the District of Columbia about which much has been written in the newspapers, and the rumor may have originated there.

A hurry call from a Farmington constituent for answers to an American History Quiz brought out some facts that I did not know myself. Question One was: Which Vice President took the oath of office in Cuba? Answer, William R. King. Question Two: What year did Congress pass a law making the date of the Presidential election uniform in all states? Answer, 1845. Question Three: What percentage of Americans were legally entitled to vote when the American Constitution went into effect? Answer, about three percent.

William B. King was elected Vice President in 1852 and was in Cuba for his health when he took the oath. The 28th Congress passed an Act in 1845 providing that electors for President and Vice President shall be appointed in each State on the Tuesday after the first Monday in the month of November of the year in which they are appointed.

The population of the United States at the time the present Constitution of the United States went into effect was about five million. By Federal statute and restrictions of various states, the right to vote was limited to about 150,000.

The gun! They're off! And only one shall break the tape, to win the crowd's acclaim.

NOTICE how he's squinting? Notice how he's got his nose right into the book? That means his eyes are not getting enough light.

If you notice your child reading or studying this way, better look to your light. Science knows that one out of five grade school children has defective vision and the number increases to two out of five at college age. Good light is one of the best-known preventives of eyestrain. And it's so easy to get.

Stop at your dealers or our office soon. See the collection of I.E.S. lamps, scientifically designed to protect eyesight. Look over the clever "adapters", that change old lamps and fixtures into modern ones. Remember, it costs only a few cents a night to give your family the benefit of sight-saving light.
